

Year 6 - PSHE Democracy Week beginning 11.5.20

Dear Prime Minister,

I would like to nominate my Grandfather Sir Nicholas Gushaw to become a Member of the House of Lords.

He has experience running a busy architecture office and was also a successful president of the Royal Academy of Art

I think he is inspiring because he is able to create magical buildings like the Eden project by only using sustainable and environmentally friendly materials. He has also designed the Eurostar terminal at Waterloo station. My favorite building he designed was the Eden project because it is environmentally friendly and is very unique.

He's a kind and honest person, he looks at both sides of an argument before reaching a balanced opinion. He can get what he wants while still being calm and not aggressive. I think he would do a great job.

Kind regards,

Nicolas Kidel

Dear Mr Prime Minister,

My name is Neve and I am currently in my concluding year at Christ Church Primary School NW3. Presently, myself and my peers are learning about the Government representing the United Kingdom and the remarkable job you do all day. I am writing this statement to you to inform you of my perspective on promoting an additional member for the House of Lords.

Therefore, I would appreciate it greatly, if you were to consider this: inspiring and motivated woman named Bethany Gould as a feasible life peer. Her profession is of a nurse at the Royal Free Hospital. She has spent hours upon hours, consistently caring for others in need of medical attention. Notably in this pandemic, Bethany and multiple National Health staff are jeopardizing their wellbeing for the benefit of others. This feat itself is an immense task that requires rather a large amount of courage and selflessness, yet this lady gives more. Time and time again, she gives: she offers assistance; she comforts those who need comforting; in times of hardship, she's the only one who remains of a calm frame of mind. The most baffling concept for me, is that Bethany never requests for a moriel of her kindness: back. This is the reason as to why SHE should be gifted something in return.

I do hope that this letter finds you well and it would be appreciated if my inquiry has been considered. As I have made clear, Bethany is a crucial being in society and she deserves to be rewarded.

Yours sincerely,

Neve

Dear Boris Jonson

I am writing to you to inform you that I have a very willing candidate that would like to run for MP.

His name is Yuvraj Desai who is a brilliant public speaker who has achieved grade 6 with a distinction. He will promote this party in the next general election massively and will be a brilliant campaigner that will give a hundred percent in all of his actions. He has a mind full of ideas that could help the conservative party in force new laws and keep the country in order. He is a trustworthy person that will never give up to tasks that are hard and dreadful, throughout his childhood he has been watching the news almost every day. He is a brilliant debater that would express his feelings and views on the modern day. He is intelligent, smart and is very persuasive, which is a very useful skill that could promote this party immensely. He is popular in the local area and could gain you lots of votes. His concentration skills are immense and overall he is a brilliant tactical candidate.

You're sincerely
Yuvraj Desai

Dear Prime Minister,

I would like to nominate a life peer. It is my grandpa his name is Professor Simon Watts. He is a visiting Professor of engineering at University College London. He knows lots about radars and the defence industry. He has written a few books and many papers on how to spot submarine periscopes in the sea helping the navy and others to spot any enemy submarines.

He has served on government committees helping them in this area of defence expertise. As part of that role he has had a lot of experience speaking in public about science. Science is a topic that a lot of people don't know very much about so my grandpa's expertise would be very useful to many in parliament. He has spent much of his life working in pressured work places and his is always calm under that pressure. Having read about professor Simon Watts and his useful work I hope you consider nominating him as a life peer. He would be a wonderful addition to the House of Lords by bringing much needed science knowledge and information about defence.

From Eilanh Mary Watts.

Dear Prime Minister,

I am writing to you because I am really into science and the sciences knowledge, Professor Martin Alborn to become a member of House of Lords. Prof. Professor Alborn was President of the British Sociological Association from 1985 to 1987, and the editor-in-chief of the journal Sociology from 1991 to 1994. Prof. Professor Alborn is very smart, respectable man, good at discussing and can always find minimum problems. He is really hardy being knowledgeable and wise and well-graduated from Cambridge. Further more, he is extremely good at debating and because he always was or every time he debates, he always makes his opponent having nothing to say. In conclusion, I can definitely say he will help the British Government and do a lot of things.

Yours Sincerely,
Jonas Fong

Dear Prime Minister,

Even though there is a rather high chance you will not be able to read this, I want to make a name for myself and state my ideas very clearly.

During this pandemic, we've been out of home, busy with our school work on parents on zoom calls and the media discussing every single bit of it. Passing through the virus, you've been patiently waiting in 16-19, waiting for a solution to pop up. Well, I have one.

I am trying to say this in the best way I can, but I have to be blunt. We are not doing a great job in taking health or economy is being a world. This is why I have nominated you health, an expert of and never off a yellow card, to help this. She is a very kind but no-nonsense woman and I believe you can be the potential to help us. I really do.

I hope you take my rather naive idea into consideration. Thank you for your time.

Yours Sincerely,

Dear Prime Minister,

I am writing to you to you to make a recommendation for a life peerage in the House of Lords.

I think my grandfather should be a member of the House of Lords, because he is very good at making a point and debating. He is observant and fair and would never lie. He has done many great things in his life and would like to be part of this group and help make the laws of the country.

He has been a small business owner and a teacher. He is a volunteer at the Exeter Fab Lab and every year he organises the neighbourhood Christmas fair. He has helped vulnerable people through the Covid crisis. This gives him a diversity in life and he knows about the needs of ordinary people.

Thank for your consideration of my recommendation and I am looking forward from hearing from you soon.

Yours sincerely,
Pietro Fitzgugh

Dear Prime Minister,

As you already know, children are at home all around the world, stressed and anxious but they are completing their homework without complaining, fearlessly and I am writing to you to ask if you will consider what I have in mind. My name is Caterina and I strongly believe my mother will make a fine, remarkable and admirable member of the House of Lords, which the country will look upon.

Firstly, my mother has quite some experience in helping people and has exceptional connections towards them: she reassures people who feel miserable and forlorn and then always looks at the bright side of things. My mother also enjoys collaborating with people and developing the strengths she sees in others. She puts 100% in absolutely everything she engages with.

Secondly, my mother is a role model, not only towards me, but with everyone. She uses her skills and compassion to help anyone who needs that little spark of delight to brighten their spirits. At home mother is always resilient and never gives up because in her head everything is possible if you follow. I really hope to be like her someday.

Finally, I profoundly believe my mother will make a prodigious, unparalleled and fantastic member of The House of Lords as a life peer, who will inspire you and who will make a difference to the country. Prime Minister, please do take in consideration my thoughts and my letter. I hope you make things right and have a lovely end to your day.

Yours Sincerely,

Caterina

Dear Mr Johnson,

I have decided to nominate an inspiring person to be a fantastic addition to the House Of Lords.

Born on 2nd May 1947, I think Sir James Dyson is a fascinating role-model and inventor who sacrifices a lot of time and money towards charity: he is very generous and thoughtful. In recent times, he was determined to help greatly the UK during this crisis and create thousands of ventilators for the NHS using his savings, spending roughly £20,000,000 on the project. However, his services were no longer required, but he didn't argue or demand for his money to be returned.

Another reason why I think Dyson would be an amazing person for the House Of Lords is because of his very clear and thinks wisely. He would be able to make a point which would greatly enhance the UK, and has good judgement so he could make the laws better for everyone. Being around since the 1940's, you can trust that Sir James Dyson has exceptional judgement from all his experiences and journeys as an inventor and designer. He is extremely generous, setting up a foundation to support design and engineering education in 2002 with its aim to encourage and inspire young students across the world to become engineers and help the world grow. In 2014, the foundation decided to donate £8,000,000 to create a technology hub in the University Of Cambridge. Amongst many other charitable endeavours, his foundation also has created The James Dyson Award which is run in 20 countries and is aimed at young designers.

Finally, Dyson has displayed in the past that he is very determined: this should tell you that he would never give up and would resiliently make the House Of Lords a better place, the UK a better place, and the world a better place to live in. He would decide very carefully on new laws and would be an inspiring role-model and life peer to be included in the House Of Lords. You should be proud if he were part of it.

Yours sincerely,

Sebastian Fietta

Dear Prime Minister,

I am writing to you to make a proposal for a new member of the House of Lords. In my opinion, Sir David Attenborough should be nominated because he is a reliable man, promotes environmental protection and he has a good understanding of justice in the world. His skills are all very useful, because of the reasons below.

Environmental protection: A lot of the UK's and the world's population would like to see the planet treated more carefully. The climate must be preserved, animals saved, and good living conditions guaranteed. If the UK was more wary of these causes, it would be greatly praised by other countries, and other benefits would follow. An example of such benefits would be less need for climate related protests, meaning children have more time for education and businesses have more workers at times when protests would occur.

Reliability: Reliability is an important factor in legislation, because it ensures that there are no traitors or wrong doers in the parliament. It also means that its members will not be untruthful - and e.g. accept bribery to take unlawful decisions.

Good sense of justice: This is very important, because if people have a good sense of what is right and what is wrong, they can determine if the law is pursuing justice and bringing positive change.

In conclusion, I find that Sir David Attenborough would be a very good addition to the House of Lords.

Yours Sincerely,

Paul Lehmann

Number of politicians:

During this pandemic, it is a very worrying and stressful time. The air is thick with our confusion as we all hope we will not catch the Coronavirus. It is a universal crisis that I think the world heavily all wish it everything divided it COVID-19. To my regret, I think the world has become a better. The High of Coronavirus has run not just about the Chinese Change crisis. Although during the virus we of hospital has drastically reduced. There is group all the the despite how several warning back in the world of virus is the great time they have been further is caused.

So on the topic of climate change, I would like to nominate Boris Johnson as a candidate. He is very smart and intelligent and clear the risky issue of climate change. He has been on the top a long time to hold a strategic political position in the British government and has been seen to be one of the leaders of the Conservative Party. He is a good strategist. He is the strong being in climate change that in the world. He is very smart and intelligent and clear the risky issue of climate change. He has been on the top a long time to hold a strategic political position in the British government and has been seen to be one of the leaders of the Conservative Party. He is a good strategist.

I hope if you heard that you have my opinion in consideration. Thank you very much.

Yours sincerely,

Pedo

Dear Prime Minister,

I am writing to you today to nominate someone who is forming the world into a phenomenal member of the House of Lords, as a life peer. My name is Rose Schiina. She is the member you have been looking for. She is like no other member and is a candidate for the position. Furthermore, Rose Schiina has everything you could require for this opportunity for her. You will not regret. She has power in discussing your understanding. Yours sincerely Rose Schiina.

Dear Prime Minister,

I am writing to you today to nominate someone personally near to me - do more suitable for the position as a member of the house of lords. My name is Rose Schiina. She has everything you could require for this opportunity. She has her strong power in debating but is fair and understanding. Furthermore, Rose Schiina has everything you could require. Please give her this opportunity.

Yours sincerely
Rose - Rose Schiina

Dear Boris Johnson,

I writing to you to nominate someone for the House of Lords. His name is Ross Henderson and he has lots of reasons to be a candidate.

Firstly, He has a physics and a maths combined Honours and a PhD in class theory. He has a passion for and he loves his work and dedication that is what drives him to be the greatest he can be.

His present job is an inventor and out there until he finished for some good reasons and he is the best of the best. His understanding of robotics, engineering and using it for his work is awesome.

Also, he works hard for the community as he helps less privileged people by helping them for what they can achieve their full potential like he has.

Overall, I believe Ross has the moral attributes to be sitting in the House of Lords. Do you not think?
Community worker, team player, smart and kind.

Yours sincerely,
Louisa

In PSHE week, Year 6 learnt about the history of democracy, the UK Government and how Parliament is run! The pupils wrote letters to Boris Johnson, the UK Prime Minister, to nominate someone who they believe should be recognised for their hard work they have done. Their letters informed the Prime Minister in great detail how their nominee should have a voice in Parliament, and represent the people of the UK as a Life Peer.

Dear Prime Minister,

I am writing to you to propose that Sir David Attenborough be made a life peer in the House of Lords. Sir David Attenborough is considered a national treasure who has been a broadcaster for over 60 years. His films and documentaries have had a huge impact on how humans interact with wildlife. His previous works have helped save endangered species and has had a vital role in raising awareness towards climate change and the plastic in our ocean.

The House of Lords needs a fearless campaigner to help our environment- for these reasons I urge you to appoint Sir David Attenborough a life peer.

Yours Sincerely,

Beckett Jenkinson Chamberlain
