

First, we decided on the nutritious food we wanted to include in our art. We painted card, thinking about the colours we would need for our food. Then we created texture by making marks or adding different layers of colour.

We used our stencils to trace our food on to the painted card. Then we cut out each part and layered them to create a collage in a repeated pattern.

In Year 2, we created pieces of art inspired by the work of Eric Carle. We wanted to show Global Sustainability Goal 2 – Ending Hunger, focusing on malnutrition and the importance of eating nutritious food.

We made our own stencils on red card so that we would be able to use to create a repeated pattern of our nutritious food.
